AN INTENSIVE CAMPAIGN

Republicans Will Get Into It Early and With Plenty of Pep.

The Republican State Committee at a meeting held in Augusta Thursday, decided to conduct an aggressive and intensive campaign and to carry the gospel of Republicanism into every nook and corner of Maine.

The committee decided to open the campaign the middle of July with an automobile tour of the State, as was done two years ago. The real speaking party of the campaign will begin three weeks before the election.

Hon. Robert J. Peacock of Lubec, the chairman of the State committee, and Hon. Guy P. Gannett of Augusta, the member from Maine of the Republican national committee, will go to Washington this week to see about the assignment of speakers. President Harding will be invited to make one speech during the campaign in this State.

Among those present at the meeting were Gov. Baxter, Hon. Guy P. Gannett, Miss Betsey Edwards of Indiana, representing the Republican senatorial committee and who campaigned in Maine two years ago, and A. B. Messer of New York, a representative of the Republican national committee.

EDGECOMBE ROAD

Everybody, Except Boothbay Harbor Folks, Wants Short Cut—Saturday's Hearing.

The location of the new stretch of permanent highway in the town of Edgcomb was the subject of a lively hearing before the State Highway Commission in Augusta Saturday. Rockland, which wants to see the road built on the "short cut" principle, was represented by Hon. A. S. Littlefield and two ex-mayors, Israel Snow and A. C. McLean, while ex-Senator Arthur B. Packard of Rockport joined in advocating the proposition. A much larger delegation was expected from this section, but it did not materialize. The opposition came from Boothbay Harbor folks, who argued that the short cut would put that town off the summer map, as the proposed route would take travel 1½ miles away from Boothbay Harbor.

The new location would be across Davis Island, an arm of the Sheepscot river, there to connect with the improved highway near the easterly limit of the village of North Edgcomb, a distance of 1.06 miles. After the hearing the commission announced that it would take the matter under consideration.

The present road leads south of Davis Island by a somewhat winding and circuitous route. The question is whether this road shall be rebuilt or whether a new piece of road leading straight across Davis Island to Newcastle shall be constructed. It is claimed that the advantage in favor of the latter proposition is that it is more direct, considerably shorter and avoids the grades and turns of the present highway.

William W. Cochrane of North Edgcomb was the first speaker in favor of the new location straight across Davis Island. He said that the new road would lessen the distance from 1½ to 1¼ miles to Rockland, and the new direct road would save thousands of dollars to the traveling public. He spoke of the curves on the present road as being most dangerous.

Chief Engineer Paul D. Sargent of the State Highway Commission said that the estimated cost of building the Davis Island route is $85,000 and that of the old road about $40,000. No estimate had been made for the work on Davis Island.

Questioned by ex-Senator Packard, Mr. Sargent said that there was a 5 per cent maximum grade on the proposed new route.

Phineas H. Gay of Newcastle made a plea for the new, direct road. "Wouldn't it be a wise matter to consider this thing from a business standpoint, have a direct road, and letting the summer people come to our State in an easy rather than in a hard way," said Mr. Gay.

Ex-Senator Luther Maddocks of Boothbay Harbor, who opposed the

HILLS' RESIGNATION

Thomaston Postmaster Examination July 15—The Warren Carrier.

Frank B. Hills last week tendered his resignation as postmaster of Thomaston, desiring retirement on account of ill health. Patrons of the office are well pleased with the service which he has given, and regret the cause which leads to his resignation. His term of office would not have expired for little more than a year.

It was thought that an acting postmaster would be appointed for the balance of the term, but the United States Civil Service Commission announced that a competitive examination for postmaster of Thomaston will be held July 15.

The announced candidates for the office are Thomas McPhail and Fred Redman. Whether either will decide to enter the Civil Service competition remains to be seen.

COMMANDER GAY'S POLICY

Would Build Up Camps of Sons and Daughters of Veterans, Everywhere.

Commander George E. Gay, newly elected to the office of Commander of the Department of Maine, Grand Army of the Republic, made his first official address Tuesday night at a reception given in his honor by his comrades in the Augusta post and the various allied bodies.

In his address he showed himself every inch a leader, with a definite policy of the greatest significance to the organization which he represents. Believing that the work of the G. A. R. must fall upon the shoulders of the sons and daughters of veterans in the very near future he committed himself to a program of building up new camps of both sons and daughters in every city or town in Maine where there are enough people eligible to form such camps. He stated his firm belief in hereditary and the spirit of patriotism that filled the hearts and souls of the men of the sixties is to be found in greatest degree in their sons and daughters, in whose veins runs the very blood of the veterans.

Upon this fact Commander Gay would rest his hope of a deepened interest in matter patriotic and in keeping alive the spirit of patriotism. He also committed himself definitely to the policy of bequeathing the property in halls and buildings and equipment which is held in all parts of Maine by the G. A. R. to the Sons and Daughters of Veterans and not to the various municipalities for the use of all patriotic organizations. This is a mooted question among the veterans but it is consistent with his policy of passing on the work of the G. A. R. to the blood descendants of the veterans and to the upbuilding of these organizations of Sons and Daughters of Veterans.

LITTLE LIGHTS

The ill-scented dusk was heavy with the falling of the dew.
As I wandered down a leafy lane, to meadows that I knew;
Afar overhead, unfading stars pricked through mists of night.
As though by giant tapers lit, like candles bravely bright.

The earth sweet waiting meadows quiescent lay, and still,
Till suddenly, wee, flick'ring lights began their depths to fill;
As if the starry hosts above, reflected were, below,
The fragrant fields were filled with myriad fireflies' soft glow.

The little village lay beyond, whose bits of clustering roof
Bid love-built homes, where laughter lived,
Whose walls seemed narrow-grooved,
And as I watched, each window gave a starry twinkling light.
Till fields on earth, and Heavens above, and little homes were bright!

THE PUBLIC HOSPITAL

The Knox County General Hospital was granted a special charter by the State in 1903 as a public hospital. The demand on the institution has steadily increased as the public have learned the absolute necessity of a permanent organization of this character which is available every minute for those who cannot pay, as well as those who can pay. Sickness and accident make no discrimination between rich, poverty, color or creed. The average number of patients is now 20, at times over 30, which exceeds the bed capacity. The hospital MUST meet this demand by the most efficient service, and the public, who properly insist on the best equipment and service, must furnish the necessary funds. The State no longer makes general appropriation available for building, maintenance and general expenses, such appropriations are limited in amount and solely for the care of non-pay patients at ward rates. The burden of general support is properly on the communities to which the institution is most accessible.

In every known instance the public has met this demand. The board of directors of the Knox County General Hospital, elected by the incorporators, of whom there are 99 from the different towns of the county, and who meet annually, desire to meet the growing demands made upon the services of the institution by our permanent and summer residents, which is the reason for the coming campaign for $100,000. The organization, which will be county-wide, for presenting the appeal for this sum, is being rapidly built up and will be ready to announce long in advance of the opening of the campaign July 24.

There is not an automobile owner this side of Wiscasset who travels between that region and the coast, who doesn't harbor both fear and detestation of the little strip of highway in the town of Edgcomb over which this car has in almost all times of the year to take its rocky and dangerous course. The proposition to remedy this long-endured nuisance through construction of a piece of State road over a route that existed in stage-coach days so warmly appeals to this great body of people that it is something of a surprise that a little army of them were not in evidence at the hearing before the State Highway Commission in Augusta Saturday. But as it was the case was ably presented and we should hope that the reasons and arguments adduced must have great weight in determining the verdict of the commission. We wish the summer visitors who for the past years have been motoring over that tortuous and bumpy stretch of road could have opportunity to vote upon it. The highway commission would get an opinion of such unanimity and emphasis as would remove every vestige of uncertainty—if any exists—from their minds.

Notwithstanding the restrictions upon immigration under the operating law, Uncle Sam is still adding to his family at a very generous rate. During the month of April, 12,889 foreigners took out naturalization papers; 25,774 made declarations of intention and 17,157 made petitions for final papers. Italy led in percentage of those obtaining naturalization; 16 per cent of them being of Italian citizenship. Great Britain came next with 14 per cent, Russia and Germany third and fourth with 11 per cent each, and Poland fifth with only a fraction less than 11 per cent.

The newspapers headline it and spread it through their columns as "Muscle Shoals." Never by chance do they spell it any other way. In the same fashion they insist upon alluding to our own Mussel Ridge Channel as "Muscle Ridge." Even the recent-day government charts spell it so. It needs but the simplest process of deduction to produce the conviction that a shoal, or the bottom of a channel, that is the breeding place of that well-known shellfish, the mussel, ought not to be designated by a name that belongs to the science of anatomy.

There is a Rockland man so good-natured that on occasions he purposely misses in a search, in order to give his wife the joy so dear to the feminine heart of coming upon him in the midst of the hunt and with great deftness producing the missing article, while she triumphantly repeats that age-long exclamation, "A man can never find anything."

Leave your address with The Courier-Gazette and have it follow you, three times a week, wherever you go on your summer vacation. Then you will keep in touch with home matters and home folks.

The intimation from Washington that the administration has under consideration a decrease in second-class postal rates will be hailed with pleasure by newspapers of the country, which during the war-times were saddled with a tremendous increase in postal charges, which has never since been mitigated. Congressman Kelley of Pennsylvania, speaking for his bill before the House committee on post-offices, said among other things:

"The newspapers and other periodicals are the very fountain source of first class and fourth class mail. They also perform an invaluable service in freely carrying messages of the post-office and other departments of the government direct to the people. They are really selling agents for the government but they get no commissions on their sales. It is a common sense policy to give them advantages in rates in the mails. These war-time postage rates have driven millions of pounds of second class matter from the mail into private channels of distribution. There is something radically wrong when private companies can make a handsome profit at rates less than those charged in postage. The postal service has the organization and the facilities and should be able to perform this service of distribution cheaper than any other enterprise. If 1918 the publishers paid postage amounting to $11,712,000. This year they will pay more than $33,000,000 for less service. I believe there is no good reason why the publishers of newspapers and magazines should be singled out to pay this extra war tax. Post separate increases were made under the war revenue law. I propose to repeal the last two increases, which would give the government 175 per cent more than the pre-war rates and would not relieve the publishing industry of one cent of the other federal taxes paid in common with all other industries. In all fairness this action should be taken at once."

Pretty nearly all the projecting signs have come down. But not all. It is purely a voluntary matter—no coercion—just civic pride and kindly co-operation. That's the lovely thing about it.

TWO INTERESTING BOOKS

"The Spell of the Rhine," the latest in the famous "Spell" series published by The Page Company, Boston, is a fascinating story of that most fascinating river in the world, with its inexhaustible wealth of legend and romance. Writers without number have told the story of this famous region, but Frank Roy Frazer, the present author, has found plenty of material out of which to make an alluring volume that will bring back to the traveler happy recollections of his journeys there, and arouse anew in the untraveled those longings to see with the visible eye the wonders and beauties of the land of fable and song. With its inviting illustrations and tasteful binding this is one of the best of the "Spell" books and worthy to be in any library.

"Our Little West Indian Cousin," by Emily Goddard Taylor, is a story of travels in the Barbados, written in a specially interesting vein for young people but not at all beneath the notice of grown-ups, as it tells of many plants and fruits unknown to Eastern markets and also gives much information regarding the food, habits and manner of living in these tropical islands of the West Indies. An especially interesting chapter tells of the different processes in the preparation of sugar, beginning with the cane growing on the plantation and ending with the article known as pan sugar. The book is teeming with interesting facts told in an interesting way for both young and old. Published by The Page Company, Boston.

DRIFTING

[For The Courier-Gazette]
How I would like to go drifting.
Out in a birch canoe,
Out by the lights in the harbor,
Just we two;
Dreaming our dreams in the moonlight,
Crowing a lullaby,
Drifting away, out in the bay,
You and I.

Out in the rays of the moonlight,
Out in its golden stream,
Out where the seabirds are floating,
We can dream;
Drifting away in the stillness,
In a tiny birch canoe,
Crowing a song as we float along,
Just we two.

Drifting away from the harbor,
Leaving our cares of the day,
Building our castles by moonlight,
Drifting away.

Then when our dreams are over,
Gone are the moonbeams too,
Back to the lights of the harbor,
Just we two.

ST. JOHN'S DAY EXTRAORDINARY

Ten Commanderies Unite In Waterville Pow-wow—Rich's Shore Dinner a Triumph—Camden Drum Corps Makes Big Hit As the Parade Passes.

Three Knox county Knight Templar Commanderies—Claremont of Rockland, De Valois of Vinalhaven and Camden of Camden—participated in the big St. John's Day celebration in Waterville Saturday, and the Sir Knights came back to their homes filled to the brim with enthusiasm and powerless to find the words which would do justice to St. Omer Commandery of Waterville which performed the duties of host in such an amazingly thorough manner. Ten Commanderies aggregating 2300 Sir Knights were entertained.

In the forenoon parade were the following organizations: Waterville Military Band, and St. Omer Commandery, of Waterville. Gardiner Band and Maine Commandery, No. 1, of Gardiner. American Legion Band of Portland and Portland Commandery, No. 2, of Portland. Bangor Band and St. John's Commandery, No. 3, of Bangor. Augusta Cadet Band and Trinity Commandery, No. 7, of Augusta.

Park Band of Rockland and Claremont Commandery, No. 9, of Rockland. Sir Edward H. Wiser, eminent commander; Sir Arthur F. Wiser, generalissimo, and Sir Robert V. Stevenson, captain general. Citizen's Band of Skowhegan and DeMolay Commandery, No. 10, of Skowhegan. Belfast Band and Palestine Commandery, No. 14, of Belfast. DeValois Commandery, No. 16, of Vinalhaven. Sir Frank M. White, eminent commander; Sir Edgar H. Bradstreet, generalissimo; and Sir George Strachan, captain general.

Camden Drum Corps and Camden Commandery, No. 23, of Camden. Sir Frank J. McDowell, eminent commander; Sir John T. Smith, generalissimo, and Sir Howard D. Small, captain general.

The parade was viewed by a distinguished gathering from the residence of Rt. Em. Frederick C. Thayer, and as the last commandery passed the reviewing stand, they entered automobiles and joined the parade.

Among those who rode in the automobiles were Em. Sir Edward K. Gould of Rockland, grand junior warden; Rt. Em. Sir Arthur S. Littlefield of Rockland, past grand commander; Em. Sir A. O. Pillsbury of Camden, grand sword bearer; Sir William P. Hurley, governor of the National Soldiers' Home and member of Claremont Commandery.

Thousands witnessed the parade, lining the streets for almost the entire route. One half was made, midway between the city and the fair grounds; the line of march was taken up again.

The shore dinner the Kennebec Journal said: "Waterville is many miles from the seashore, but that did not prevent the banquet and lunch committee, consisting of Em. John H. DeOrsay and Sir Frank D. Robinson, from putting on a dinner which might have made the proprietors of the best seacoast resorts green with envy."

"The Sea Products Co. of Rockland, represented by Walter J. Rich of that city, catered, and here are some of the things which had to be done before the dinner was ready. In the first place, wooden tables had to be constructed to seat at one time all the guests expected. This necessitated a big force of carpenters. The tables were built on the level space between the new dancing pavilion and the horse sheds, and in the center was the big steam-cooking outfit. For the dinner there was supplied three tons of lobsters, 146 barrels of clams, 30,000 bottles of bottled beer, 45,000 rolls, 3,500 portions of ice cream and 3,500 portions of butter. The separate dishes, including the wooden picks furnished with the lobsters, numbered 28,000. A small army of men and women served. The committee and caterer were the recipients of warm praise and it was many times stated that it was without doubt the biggest and best single dinner ever served in the State of Maine, and all concerned have reason to be proud of the manner in which a gigantic undertaking was handled."

"Particularly worthy of note was the generous amount of soft drinks, which were served to all simply for the asking, as well as cigars, 3,500 being provided for distribution and they were all of excellent quality." The guests made their way to the grandstand, which was soon filled and while waiting for the boxing match, watched some fast workouts by the horsemen who have their fast ones at the park this summer.

In due time before a crowded stand, Joe Stanley of Philadelphia and Kid Lee of Chelsea, boxed a fine double-six bout.

The different bands were scattered around through the grandstand, and one by one they took their turns in giving rattling good numbers, which were interspersed between the various events.

The entertainment committee had likewise provided a fine vaudeville program, provided by the Keith circuit. This program included the St. Onge trio, sensational novelty ring artists; the Three Serenaders; Miss Dreamers, Oriental and Hawaiian dancer; Raymond and Geneva, comedy jugglers; the Lovenberg Sisters and Mary in singing and dancing, and Eugene and Finney, comedy bar performers. The last named team operated on the stand next the judges' stand, while the others performed on a temporary stage at the front of the grandstand. The Three Serenaders proved to be something of a mystery, particularly the violinist, a man with distinguished countenance reminding his audience of William J. Bryan, and with so accomplished a virtuoso air in handling the violin that a visiting Sir Knight several times exclaimed, "We want to know who is that fiddler," but the only reply was a deferential but sphinxlike smile, as the violinist announced his next realistic imitation. Raymond and Geneva, jugglers, were especially good, and the audience told them so. The masculine half of the team had a Will Rogers rope-swinging monologue that proved very satisfactory. All the other acts were good, and the entire troupe, including Miss Dreamers, added a little something extra which gave the stay-till-the-finish folks a chance to lord it just a little over those who are always rushing out before things are over.

The ball game resulted in a score of 8 to 2, Augusta beating Waterville. The Sir Knights returning by trolley left the cars at the head of Spring street, and it was here that a daring experiment was carried out successfully. All the bands except two were combined in a truly bewildering array. First came three tiers of trombones, next four rows of bass horns, then the other instruments in their order, a whole regiment of drums of all descriptions and lastly the first and second cornets in their order. Hans Schmidt of Portland, drum major of the Portland band and one of the biggest and most famous police officers in New England lined the band boys up.

Nobody knew how it was going to sound, but the order was to play the "Boston Commandery March" through three times and then stop. With the grand march, Em. Clarence E. B. Walker and his aides in the lead, the command, "Forward, march," was given, and the parade started, with St. Omer escorting to station such of their guests as cared to march.

The musical effect was truly wonderful, a most wonderful feature of a wonderful day. Great waves of harmony went rolling forth, and as each set of instruments went past, that particular musical part was intensified, but all were blended in a way that was a marvel.

And as the parade turned from Silver street into Main street, hundreds of sticks of red fire were lighted along Main street. The darkness of evening had not fully settled down, but the effect was indescribable and reminded the spectators of a scene in fairyland. The Camden Drum Corps made up from members of Camden Commandery, was the hit of the parade. The musicians looked fine in their distinctive uniforms and played like veterans.

A BLOW TO BOXING

Last Night's Fracas Probably Ends Sport In Rockland For a While—Cotter Has Quick Victory.

Boxing in Rockland went down for the count, as the result of last night's farcical exhibition in Spear block. The fresh air of next fall may revive the victim, but it was the consensus of all fans last night that the game had better take a hot weather vacation, while fumigation is in progress.

"K. O." Stevens and "Stony" Wall were produced as curtain-raisers for the performances, and during the latter part of the third round it really looked as if it were to be a bona fide contest. Wall, who had stopped 83 jabs with a gradually illuminating nose, finally became vexed, and to the delight of the crowd, hit back lustily at the facetious Stevens. But he was all in when the last round opened, and possibly because he did not feel wealthy enough to buy flowers Stevens did not take advantage of his opponent's weakness.

When Kid Mason stepped through the ropes to box Tommy Gastin in the second prelim, the crowd sat up with the expectation of seeing a real bout, for Kid Mason long ago proved that he is the real article. But Gastin had no notion of converting himself into the subject of an obituary, and after a round and a quarter of pussyfoot stuff Referee Halstead stopped the "fight." Mason indicated his willingness to go on in earnest but Gastin was mindful of the couplet—

"He who fights and runs away,
May live to fight another day."

So Gastin climbed through the ropes and faded out of the picture, while the crowd booed and jeered.

Then ensued a long wait, during which the smoke grew thicker and the heat grew hotter. The band played five R. B. Hall marches and two composed by Noah and did it in fine style. Everybody applauded.

John Lanigan was to have fought

Young Doyle, but Young Doyle did not appear and Oliver Hamilton got into gear as a substitute. But neither appeared in the ring. Finally there came the referee with the announcement that the semi-final bout had been called off, as there was not money enough in the house to pay the principals in the main bout.

Another long wait and one of the underdogs appeared with two lemons, one of which he deposited in each corner.

The crowd had seen imitation lemons all the evening, but was still in a patient and good humored mood.

Enter Walter Travers, Tom Cotter's manager, who explained in a nice manner that there was not money enough in the box office by $30 or $40 to satisfy the men scheduled for the main bout.

A collection was taken, and it yielded $29. "No use, got to have another dollar," said one of the managers. The missing dollar was supplied by the keeper of the exchequer.

So the main bout went on. Big rugged boys are Sailor White and Tom Cotter, and both in their prime. Sailor White took the initiative and to the delight of his local admirers kept the former Vinalhaven boxer very busy for about a couple of minutes. Cotter then rained a volley of sturdy blows into his face and White went down. The crowd thought it was all over, but when Referee Halstead had counted nine White was on his feet, and clinching with his adversary. On the first break, however, Cotter cracked him on the jaw and he went down for keeps.

Cotter recently fought "Porky" Flynn in Boston and was knocked out in the fifth, but according to Manager Travers Flynn was out in the second, saved only by technicalities. The boxers are to meet again in two weeks, and it will be interesting to see what happens then. Cotter looks good.

WEATHER THIS WEEK

Washington, June 26.—Weather outlook for this week in Northern Atlantic States: Generally fair except for local showers near end of week; moderate temperature first part of week and warmer thereafter.

Walter J. Rich, Jr., has returned from a 10 day business trip to New Hampshire.

This is not to be a cucumber year, judging from the tales of woe which some of the backyard gardeners are unfolding.

Only four Maine agents are listed among the brokers in the New England Mutual for 1921. One of them, of course, is J. F. Cooper of Rockland, the secret of whose success is keeping everlastingly at it.

C. W. Sheldon has contracted with F. A. Stanley for the building of a fine new home on Masonic street, near the attractive residence of V. F. Studley. Work on the cellar will start next week.

The hours have been changed for the American Legion's afternoon sports at Oakland Park Fourth of July. Corrected they read: Field sports at 2, ball game at 3.45, battalion review at 5.

One of the leading night-before-the-Fourth festivities of the city is to be the dance and supper party at the Hotel Thorsdike. Music is to be furnished by Kelley's Orchestra.

Dr. I. B. Gage of Swan's Island was in the city yesterday, headed for the annual convention of the Maine Medical Association in Portland, and also to attend the reunion of World War medical officers, which will be held in conjunction with the convention.

Mrs. Clara Herick, home demonstration agent, is at the home of Mrs. Ralph Wilson, Cribhaven, the first three days of this week, demonstrating "better" with the aid of Mrs. George Everett and Mrs. Ida E. Collins, chairman and secretary, respectively, of the committee.

Fred S. Packard, whose stirring adventures on the sea were read with much interest in Saturday's issue of the Courier-Gazette, is now first officer on the tank steamship Agwinex, running between Port Lobos, Mexico and Boston. The master of that ship is also a Rockland man, Capt. B. W. Dunton.

Assist the apron committee of the Congregational Society by patronizing Wednesday's lawn party at the corner of Main street and Tillot avenue—adv.

The Saturday ball game in Camden this week will be between Camden and Lewiston. The game will be called at 2.30 standard.

An Auburn truck camped in front of Woolworth's store early yesterday morning and discharged a new awning half as big as Barnum's circus tent. The sunshade was hoisted in jig time.

The Park Band will give a concert and street dance in Postoffice square Friday evening. These outdoor events have proven very popular in other communities, and the coming event will doubtless prove so here.

E. S. May, Registry clerk at the Post-office is filling out an unexpired vacation of several days, spending the time on his farm.

A school for officers and non-commissioned officers of the Coast Artillery Corps is in progress at Fort Williams, Portland, and is being attended by a sizable contingent from Rockland. The school will continue until Wednesday night.

The Chamber of Commerce committee meets tonight at 7.30 in MacAllister's law office. The organization meeting takes place in the City Government rooms Wednesday night at 7.30, and all members should be interested enough to attend.

J. S. Walter Burpee, for many years employed in local dry goods stores, died Saturday night at his home on Lincolnton street, aged 70 years. The funeral services will be at the residence this afternoon at 2 o'clock. Obituary deferred to Thursday's issue.

Sir Auckland Geddes, British ambassador, who has been spending a few days at his Dark Harbor summer home, passed through the city yesterday, accompanied by Lady Geddes. They were enroute for New York, and sail today on the Mauritania for their home in England, where they will spend part of the summer.

The W. C. T. U. will meet with Mrs. Frank Gregory, 105 North Main street, Friday afternoon at 2.30. "Studies in Government," prepared by Mrs. Deborah Knox Livingston, will be the subject of the afternoon's program. It is hoped that many of the new members will avail themselves of this opportunity of getting acquainted with the work of the organization.

The first golf tournament of the season, a sweepstake, took place at the Country Club Saturday afternoon. Fairways were heavy and no records were smashed, but everybody had a good time. The golf prize fell to M. E. Wotton and V. P. Hall, whose final scores aggregated 82 each. A tossed coin gave Mr. Wotton first place.

Witham Bros. Inc., wholesale lobster dealers, have recently reorganized, and among the capitalists now interested is Hon. Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York, formerly assistant secretary of the Navy, and candidate for the Vice Presidency on the Democratic ticket two years ago. A. P. Homer of Boston is president, Elmer R. Witham is vice president, and C. L. Homer of Boston is treasurer. The company will gradually extend its growing business.

President Albert R. Havener of the Rockland Veteran Firemen's Association last night received 50 tickets from the Rockport Association, to the supper which will be tendered at Grand Army hall in Rockport Thursday night at 6.30, complimentary to the winners of the recent contest between the Burgess and Havener tubs. A special meeting of the Rockland Association will be held tonight to complete arrangements for the trip. Last night the Albert R. Havener threw a stream of 225 feet.

ANNOUNCEMENT

OUR PROSPERITY SALE comes this year at an opportune time for your summer purchases. Watch for full page itemized advertisement in Thursday's issue of The Courier-Gazette. Sale opens FRIDAY, JUNE 30th, and continues four days up to JULY 5th inclusive.

Dr. A. K. P. Harvey has opened his office and resumed the practice of his profession.

The American Legion Auxiliary is to have a fair on the Elks lawn July 27.

An important meeting of Winslow-Holbrook Post is called for Thursday night.

I. Leslie Cross is driving a new Reo car. At least it has that appearance. A slick look of painting made the machine look that way.

The Chi-namel demonstration is on at H. H. Crie & Co's.

Everett Oney is employed on the steamer James T. Morse for the summer season. The Lime Company baseball team thus loses one of its star performers, and all fans will regret the clever third baseman's absence from the diamond.

H. F. Mann of the Knox County Motor Sales Co., is occupying apartments in the A. H. Jones residence at 7 Talbot avenue, where his mother and sister are also making their home. William H. Anderson of the same corporation has leased the Davis bungalow at the Head of the Bay.

L. S. Hahn is chief of the new hose company at Marine Central wharf, and the reel bears his name, but he is far from being "the whole cheese." The other officers are: J. H. Breen first foreman, I. L. Mank second foreman, H. S. McIntyre third foreman, M. Marston clerk, G. W. Dowlin axeman, J. Demuth steward, Frank Traflet marine engineer. The other members are George Lurvey, Joe Dorgan, Harry Harvey, H. Whedder, Mr. Hopper, Mr. Taylor, Mr. Crie, Mr. Peterson, and Mr. Tibbetts. Oh, yes! and Jim, the cook.

"Come down and go deep sea fishing," writes Mrs. R. W. Goudy, formerly of Rockland, on the margin of a neat little booklet descriptive of Port Maitland, Nova Scotia, in general, and the Ellis House, Port Maitland in particular. "The Mecca of the Vacationist" is what they call the hotel and certainly it does look real inviting, as do the general views of the picturesque Nova Scotia town. Mrs. Goudy's residence is shown in the foreground of one of the pictures. It is an attractive two-story house located on one of the principal streets of the village.

Henry H. Payson, register of probate, has bought the Wight Company's business and stock, and is already in possession, retaining E. Mont Perry as his assistant. Mr. Payson will give the business his personal attention so far as it does not interfere with his official duties at the Court House. He is far from a novice in the grocery game, as he was formerly in that business at Hope, and was also employed for a while at the store of Carleton & Pascal in Camden. Mr. Payson is universally liked, and success in his new venture is a foregone conclusion. The store will be closed tomorrow, but the doors will be open bright and early Thursday morning, and a new stock of goods will be on the shelves.

The Congregational lawn party on the Tillson-White premises next north of the church takes place tomorrow. The noonday luncheon, beginning at 12 o'clock will be a convenience to business men and clerks. Salads, sandwiches, ices, cake, etc. These refreshments will also be served the remainder of the afternoon. The High School Orchestra will play an hour. Mrs. Stanley Cushing of Thomaston will sing, and there will be other entertainment features. If stormy the lunch and entertainment will be in the church.—adv.

At a meeting of the Maine Osteopathic Association held in Portland last Saturday Dr. T. H. McBeath was elected president and Dr. Mary Reuter was elected vice president.

The Beaver Camp girls 65 in number and hailing from the four corners of these United States are at their summer quarters in East Union, getting all the joy of life that can be crowded into 24 hours a day. Mrs. S. N. Duer is in charge.

News was received this morning of the death of Mrs. Lucella Witham in Boston. Mrs. Witham had been a summer resident at Crescent Beach for many seasons. Funeral services will be held Thursday afternoon from the residence of Miss Helen Carr in Thomaston.

Mrs. Truscott of the Owl's Head Inn complains that one of the expensive advertising signs she posted on the Owl's Head road has been destroyed, but if the boys will bring it back no legal steps will be taken.

A Rockland woman who read the recent item in this paper about potato bugs being seen on Main street, says that she counted 382 of the pests while walking the length of the Breakwater. And she thinks she may have missed a few of them.

Forty-eight Elks attended the Penobscot salmon supper at the Home last night. The degree was conferred upon Irving P. Tuttle of Rockland and Edwin E. Bragg and J. W. Burton of Belfast.

The Sunday morning services at the First Baptist church featured the pastor, Rev. Mr. Browne, Mrs. Browne and E. C. Moran, Jr., were a nominating committee and as the result of their deliberations these officers were chosen: President, Ensign Otis; vice president, Ralph W. Hanson; secretary-treasurer, Marie Wooster; assistant secretary-treasurer, Miss Lucy Rhodes; executive committee, Dr. Emory B. Howard, Mrs. William S. Healey, Miss Alice Erskine, Donald Hastings and S. Prentiss Aylward. The program consisted of two choruses sung by the Alumni Chorus under direction of Mrs. Faith Berry; song (his own composition) A. Ross Weeks and chorus; recitation, Miss Charlotte Cross; vocal solo, Mrs. E. B. Howard; and a couple of stories told in Mr. Weeks' inimitable manner. Music by the Armstrong trio featured the first part of the evening and dancing closed it.

The High School Alumni Association's reception to the High School graduating class Friday night was considered by many as the most successful of any of those delightful annual events, the attendance being very large and the spirit of the graduates, old and young, exceedingly joyous. The business session was presided over in admirable manner by the retiring president, Charles A. Rose, Jr. An interesting feature was the calling of the class roll, which began with 1866, A. Ross Weeks responding for his class of six members, the other surviving member being Laura J. Rhodes, now of San Francisco. Brief remarks were made by representatives from some of the other early classes. That Rockland High School is not "slipping" was proven to the satisfaction of her hearers by Miss Anna E. Coughlin, the principal, who responded when her class was called. Specific instances to the contrary were given. A. S. Peterson, W. O. Fuller, Mrs. E. F. Berry and E. C. Moran, Jr. were a nominating committee and as the result of their deliberations these officers were chosen: President, Ensign Otis; vice president, Ralph W. Hanson; secretary-treasurer, Marie Wooster; assistant secretary-treasurer, Miss Lucy Rhodes; executive committee, Dr. Emory B. Howard, Mrs. William S. Healey, Miss Alice Erskine, Donald Hastings and S. Prentiss Aylward. The program consisted of two choruses sung by the Alumni Chorus under direction of Mrs. Faith Berry; song (his own composition) A. Ross Weeks and chorus; recitation, Miss Charlotte Cross; vocal solo, Mrs. E. B. Howard; and a couple of stories told in Mr. Weeks' inimitable manner. Music by the Armstrong trio featured the first part of the evening and dancing closed it.

Mrs. Harris Woodman of Winthrop has been spending a few days with her mother, Mrs. Abbie Healey.

W. R. Driver, Jr., general manager and vice president of the New England Telephone and Telegraph Co., is at North Haven, with his family, for the summer.

Two hundred barrels of lobsters were shipped by express from this city yesterday, yet there are some other ports which lay claim to being lobster-producing centers.

Everybody's glad to see the Twilight League back on even keel, after a week in what can scarcely be called dry dock. The schedule for this week appears in another column. Games begin soon after 6.15.

Master Weymouth of the City Farm doesn't generally plan to allow anybody to beat him in having green peas, but here's Charlie Emery, a street railway motorman who has been feasting on them for a week. But up to date Mr. Emery hasn't had a cloudburst convert his garden into a Mammoth Cave.

Threatening skies prevented much of a crowd at the opening of Oakland Park Sunday, but after all there was quite a gathering on hand. Everybody enjoyed the Park Band's concert and everybody was interested in the evidences which still remained of the food's ravages. It is very evident that a regular river must have swept across the ball ground.

President Bullock of the Deep Sea Fisheries Inc., returned to New York Sunday after spending a few days at the Rockland plant.—The company shipped about 100 barrels of herring to Paul Pizimenti, in Boston yesterday.—Trawler Medric arrived Saturday night with 200,000 pounds of fresh fish which has been sold to C. F. Mattlage & Sons, Inc., who have established a fish curing plant at the Lane & Libby stand in Vinalhaven. The Medric's fare is about one-tenth of the quantity of fish which the Deep Sea has contracted to furnish the Mattlage concern.

The death in Camden yesterday of Mrs. T. Jenness French, will bring regret to a wide circle of friends throughout Knox county, in the musical circles of which for many years she had been very prominent. Further mention will be made.

The big storm of last week is still giving rise to some unique stories. But The Courier-Gazette challenges anybody to beat the experience of a hay-rick owned by Bert Benner of Thomaston. It was missed after the deluge, and a search of the entire community failed to reveal it. It is not easy to see how anybody could steal an elephant and get away with it; neither is it easy to see how a hay-rick could vanish into thin air. Some youngsters took it into their heads to go down the Georges River on a voyage of exploration and at Hospital Point, 2½ miles away from Bert Benner's barnyard there sat the hay-rick big as life.

Miss Agnes Riley, the Red Cross nurse is busy getting acquainted with her territory. She has already had a number of calls, one of which she was unable to answer because the telephone number was given wrong. Persons requiring the assistance of the nurse should be very careful in giving street or telephone number as she is very anxious to answer all calls.

If you want to know what the storm of last Thursday morning was really like, ask Ernest C. Davis of Fuller Cobb-Davis, who rode from his Alford Lake cottage to Rockland between 1 and 3 o'clock while Nature's rain bucket was bottom side up. With him was Mrs. Davis, Mrs. Biddle of Philadelphia and the chauffeur. The party had gone to the lake on what Mr. Davis had laughingly promised Mrs. Biddle would be a lark. He kept his word better than he knew. Providing with all sorts of delicacies in the eating line it was 10 o'clock before supper was served away. The rain fell and the lightning flashed, so the shelter of the cottage, with its cheerful open grate fire, made it very easy to tarry until midnight. Not many folks would have fared forth at that hour of the night in that kind of a storm, but Ernest's knowledge of the road was equalled only by his faith in getting away. He started for The road that Ernest knew, and the rivers which submerged it at various points, are two widely different matters. Often the water was over the running board, and the sound of the elements was terrifying, but the quartet arrived home safely, to find Rockland half submerged, and to learn later that at least one of the bridges they crossed had been carried away. But don't look for the details here, get Ernest to tell you about it.

A BIG CONTRACT

It is reported here on excellent authority that the Stonington granite firm, known as Ryan & Parker, has landed the contract to furnish the granite for the new court house which is to be built in New York City at a cost of several million dollars. The same authority says that the Hallowell Granite Works has the contract to furnish the carved work. It is "a good old fashioned job," to use the words of a local man, and will mean prosperity for at least two granite communities for several years. And that means dollars in all other channels.

The storm of last Wednesday night was the worst that our people ever remember, and some of them are nearly 80 years old, too. The heaver dam overflowed and went into the building at the Creek known as the Lew Golden store, now occupied by D. S. Kahoch, the water being about a foot above the first floor. It also damaged the roads, the worst place being from Frank Morris to the William Hart bridge, where the sides of the road looked as though a big plow had been run twice through it about four feet deep. It will take about 15 loads of dirt and rock to put it in good condition.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Colson and Mrs. G. H. Hall of Camden motored down and called on friends and relatives Sunday.

Much of the sugar beet seed imported into the United States comes from Germany, and is received through the port of Galveston.

A Frenchman has written on an ordi- nary postcard 23,154 words—125,000 letters. The writing is said to be legi- ble to the naked eye.

A will written in shorthand has been admitted to probate in England. The testator, before dying in hospital in Antwerp, wrote the will in the form of a letter to his brother.

Parisian cemeteries are so over- crowded as to threaten public health; cremation has proved unpopular. The municipal commission studying the problem advises the building of four big cemeteries 15 miles out of Paris, with railroad service to and from the city.

A pin in the left lung of a little Kan- sas girl was removed by the aid of one of the latest devices of science, the bronchoscope. The instrument was in- serted in the bronchus through the mouth, and forceps, lowered through the tube, brought out the pin within two minutes.

"Old things are best" has always been accepted as true of wine and fiddles. But at the Paris Conserva- toire, where six old and six new violins were played in complete darkness, the votes of the audience placed two modern violins, than a Stradivarius, and after that a Guadagnini.

The body of Mrs. Elizabeth Maier, who was murdered in Westbury, L. I., was disinterred to be finger-printed. Her finger prints were compared with those found on a cream pitcher and sugar bowl, and found to be entirely different. Those on the china are said to agree with the finger prints of an itinerant peddler charged with the crime.

The saloon was known in ancient Pompeii, as recent excavations dis- close. A bar has been found, with a furnace and caldron for making the brew; there was even a little liquor left in the caldron. Election appeals were found on the walls; Lollis, a dun- dumvir who looked after streets and sacred buildings, asks the votes of the frequenters of the saloon. This method of seeking votes antedates 200 B. C.

In an effort to avert the small- change crisis France issued bronze- aluminum "jetons," or one-franc and two-franc tokens. These are disap- pearing at the rate of 800,000 a day— almost as fast as the mint turns them out. According to authorities these tokens, though intrinsically almost valueless, are going into the woolen stockings" of the notoriously thrifty French to join the silver coins that vanished long ago. Means are being sought to force the people to disgorge the jetons.

The Childs Reaction to the Movies was recently tested in Chicago, and some unexpected results were obtain- ed. The 5000 children were bled to- wards elephants; hison thundering over the prairie met with a heartier recep- tion; but it remained for the shunk above all other animals, to excite their enthusiasm. The picture of a boy stealing apples and wading in shallow creeks put many of the children to sleep.

After many years of comparative neglect, the humble leech is again into its popularity. But the old leech farm have long disappeared, and modern physicians who claim there are few better methods of relieving inflamma- tory areas than by the application of these blood-sucking creatures find dif- ficulty in the supply. The "animated mustard plasters" are exported in baskets from Turkey, and Paris has one leech farm selling 130,000 a month, but it is said that chemists in England could easily dispose of double the number they are able to buy.

The keeper of Bride's Island light, below Cape Flattery, has appealed to the Federal authorities in Tacoma for weapons and help. No sooner does he open his door than the sea lions force their way into the house and make free with his possessions. At night they surround the place, barking for ad- mittance, until sleep is impossible. One big fellow amuses himself by climbing the exterior steps to the light, to plunge headlong into the sea. How did your neighbor's last bargain tire turn out

PROBABLY you know
at least one car-owner who is always on the look-out for the cheapest tires he can find. He likes to get them by mail or at a sale or at some place where they have big red bargain signs over the door.

It would be fine if he could get "the edge" in every tire trade.

But the dealer can't afford to let him have it.

Even if a man saw any slight percentage in tire shopping at all—it disappeared when the "Usco" brought the price down.

A standard product—and the dealer sells it with pride.

A good tire. The dealer has no desire to trade you into a larger profit for himself.

An out-in-the-open tire. The dealer sells you confidence, not price. He wants you satisfied with performance and value. The only way he knows to get your business is to deserve it.

This is the "Usco" idea.

Compared with the ten-minute thrill of the bargain appeal, the "Usco" is just plain common-

Boynton Limits Rockland To Three Scratches, and Camden Locals Win First.

The Camden locals opened their baseball season auspiciously Saturday afternoon when they defeated the Rockland-Thomaston combination 4 to 2 in a game that was marked by some very sharp playing. Rockland failed to make a solitary clean hit off George Boynton, who appears to be going stronger than ever this season, and who fielded his position in a manner that delighted the crowd, drawing impartial applause from the visiting fans. Feehan, the young Thomaston High School pitcher, was in the box for the combination, and did an amazingly good turn for his first time in fast company. Several of the eight hits made off him were scratches, like the three made off Boynton.

Camden scored one of her runs in the first inning on Wardwell's single, Thomas's sacrifice and Lindsey's error. Camden might still have been scoring in that reel, but for the sharp double play made by A. Rogers, Wotton and Hart.

Another run came in the 4th, on singles by G. Thomas and Boynton and a sacrifice by Richards. Rockland pulled another double play in this inning—McDonald, Lindsey and Wotton. Camden's remaining two runs were due to singles by F. Thomas and Upton and a double by McCobb in the 7th. "Things looked pretty stormy for Rockland in the 3rd. F. Thomas had reached first on Rogers' error, and stole second. Upton and McCobb were passed in succession and the bases were full. Feehan fanned Macree, Jimmy Ross made a beautiful catch of Taylor's long fly, and Upton was doubled at second, via Rogers.

With Rockland it was a monotonous succession of one-two-three until the 6th, when Ross reached second on a miscalculated fly. Lindsey fanned Feehan's fly had all the earmarks of a perfectly good single, but McCobb brought the crowd to its feet with a brilliant running catch. Mealey's single and a brace of misplays gave Rockland a couple of runs with two hands down.

TENANT'S HARBOR DAYS

On Board Schr. Challenge, On Voyage From Calais to Block Island, Thence To Pt. Johnson, N. Y., Thence to Salem, Mass.

June 4, 1882.—Fine and clear. Passed Pellicoct Rip at 7:30 a. m. At 4 p. m. we were off Cape Cod Light (Highland) wind S. W. Winced out about all day. (Here we were on a ship showed her speed, running free.) Hauled up at 4:30 for Salem, sheet off, good breeze.

June 15.—F. and warm. We were off Halfway Rock at daylight. Got into Salem about 7 a. m. Saw Will Schooner Annie L. Henderson. My brother Will, who was captain of the Isaac Fountain in command. Got into dock about 11:30. (We made the dock under sail with the captain at the wheel. We let the mainsail go on the run and it covered the captain all day and we nearly butted the dock down before we got it off of him.)

June 16.—F. and warm. We were off Halfway Rock at daylight. Got into Salem about 7 a. m. Saw Will Schooner Annie L. Henderson. My brother Will, who was captain of the Isaac Fountain in command. Got into dock about 11:30. (We made the dock under sail with the captain at the wheel. We let the mainsail go on the run and it covered the captain all day and we nearly butted the dock down before we got it off of him.)

June 17.—Fine and warm. Got up about 4 a. m., helped wash down. Wind east all forenoon. After dinner got under way and beat out. Was off that her island at dark. Foggy, wind about S. E. Turned in at 8 p. m. clear. (We discharged our forward hand here, so it was us four and no more, and I had to stand watch and cook besides. There wasn't but mighty little left to cook.)

June 18.—Thick and foggy this morning. Wind about east. Lonesome enough today. Spoke 3-master this p. m. who said we were off Halfway Rock. Talked and stood off shore at dark. Hauled down jibs and mainsail, and dogged her. (I suppose I knew 40 years ago what "dogged her" meant. Some of those sea phrases in this old diary sound real salty, and chances are they are correct. Speak up, ye ancient mariners, M. M. and Charlie.)

June 19.—Rained very hard this morning, sailed a little and we heard horns and bells. After dinner kept off for four hours, spoke 3-master who said we were four miles off Sagin. Sailed so we could see it. Came up a squall, lowered mainsail and jibs. (I think we were afraid of hitting the Bantam Ledges, as I remember it now, was why we were cut off. Segin.)

June 20.—Clear, pleasant morning. Wind S. W., calmed N. W., good breeze. Made Monhegan at 7 a. m., passed the Susan Ross at 9:30. (If all the captains, mates, cooks and foremast hands who started their career as mariners in the Susan Ross were alive today there would be enough to man the U. S. Merchant Marine.) Got into Tenants' Harbor at 11:30, got dinner at home. (We left the Harbor April 22, so we were only 59 days on the voyage. Not so "worse"—sometimes it took longer.) So ended my career on ship-board. Boze, the exCook.

How a frigid Eskimo becomes a passionate Romeo is told through the medium of today's comedy triumph, The Perfect Woman, starring Constance Talmadge. As Mary Blake, she falls in love with a multi-millionaire, Jim Stanhope. She feels the love surge, and to always be near the shrine of her affections, Mary applies for a position in the office, unaware of the fact that Jimmy's hobby is resisting women. He barricaded himself against the charms of the other sex, by employing a character reader who could spot designing young ladies at a half mile. Mary runs headlong into the character expert in seeking the position, and the competent reader of innermost thoughts unceremoniously shows Mary to the door. Mary is wise, however, and went home to adjust her homely disguise.

Thomas Melghan has a strong role Wednesday in "The Leading Citizen"—a picture destined to please the multitude.

A cast of stars was selected for the Thursday-Friday special picture "The Child Thou Gavest Me." The story is a highly dramatic one, with terrific suspense throughout. Unlike the usual picture, which ends with the ringing of the wedding bells, "The Child Thou Gavest Me" begins with the wedding, and the nuptials as portrayed in the picture are magnificently elaborate. Following the ceremony, the man hurries up to the room of his bride, supremely happy as a bridegroom should be. He opens the door—and stands petrified with amazement for the bride, still wearing her veil and gown, is clasping a little boy to her breast. "I thought he was dead," sobbed the girl, too happy to try to hide her secret any longer, even from her husband. Then began a search, desperate an unflinching, for one whom the husband had sworn to kill. He suspects every man, including his best friend, whom he shoots. Then he discovers his error. The man he is seeking is the last one on earth that he would have suspected. But he does not kill him—for sufficient reasons—adv.

Sunday was observed as Children's Day at the Baptist church. At the morning service the pastor, Rev. Andrew Young preached a sermon appropriate to the occasion. There was a good attendance at the Sunday school and in the evening a concert was given by the members of the school under the direction of the Superintendent, Miss Helen Dunbar, assisted by a committee consisting of Miss Lillian Brann, Mrs. Bertha Thurston and Mrs. Andrew Young who deserve much credit for the interesting program which was given.

Very little damage is reported from the storm in this vicinity. Some cellars were partially flooded, and boxes of preserve jars shushed round for a day and a night, but compared with the floods down town we were comparatively high and dry. Gardens are too wet to be cultivated and many of our small transplanted plants are washed away or driven into the ground by the driving rain, but on the whole we have very little of which to complain.

My neighbor across the way has a cat which deserves special mention. Flocks of chickens are running about a short distance from the house and one day this cat's kitten, just old enough to chase flying leaves and pounce upon them, spied a young chicken coming his way. Of course he scrambled for it and though he is really not large enough to hurt it, yet it made a great outcry and escaping, ran for its life still yelling earnestly. The old cat sitting near the door took this all in and making no move to even the score she seated herself to await events. Soon another chicken popped out into the open and the kitten made a leap for it, but he never reached it, for the mother cat made a quicker and longer leap and seizing her offspring she administered a cuffing that young Tom will remember throughout every one of his nine lives. The chickens ramble now wherever their fancy leads them and that kitten looks wistfully toward them, casts one glance at "Mother" then settles down like a veteran. Who says cats are not intelligent.

Friends admiring my beautiful lupine blooms are anxious to obtain a root of some special color, especially of his nine lives. This brings to mind a rather curious experience, for when I started that lupine bed I sent for the pink seed only—Lupinus Polyphyllus Roseus. They were all pink for a year or two and I began to find white ones and these were more bright blue spikes than any other color. So it seems that like some other flowers they revert to type after a while and can never be quite sure of their color.

Friends admiring my beautiful lupine blooms are anxious to obtain a root of some special color, especially of his nine lives. This brings to mind a rather curious experience, for when I started that lupine bed I sent for the pink seed only—Lupinus Polyphyllus Roseus. They were all pink for a year or two and I began to find white ones and these were more bright blue spikes than any other color. So it seems that like some other flowers they revert to type after a while and can never be quite sure of their color.

EARTH NOT REALLY CROWDED

Trouble is That Nature Has Not Seemed to Arrange a Division That is Equitable.

Somebody has reckoned that if the earth's population had increased 4 1/2 per cent every hundred years since the birth of Christ, by now there would not be standing room left on the globe, including all the islands. Yet England and Wales in ten years increased their population 161 per cent, and the increase in the United States has been much greater.

The earth's population at the present time is about sixteen hundred million. Different parts of the earth vary greatly in the matter of density of population. Certain portions of China, the Ganges valley, and parts of Europe are too crowded for comfort. On the other hand, large tracts of Central Asia, Russia, the Americas, Africa and Australia could accommodate many more people.

The Turks by their religious fanaticism have caused devastation in the last five hundred years in the valley of the Danube, in Macedonia, Asia Minor, Syria, and Mesopotamia. These countries, as a result of massacre and famine, are dried-up deserts.—Popular Science Monthly.

To Waterproof Matches.

One of the commonest experiences of the camper is that of finding that matches are so damp that they will not strike. All this trouble may be avoided by providing oneself with waterproof matches. These are easily made in the following way: Melt a few lumps of candle wax in an old can on the stove. Allow this to cool a little and then, before it has set, dip the matches in, one at a time. Treat the heads and about half of the wooden part. Place the matches on one side to cool. Matches treated in this simple manner have been soaked in water for many hours, and they have ignited as readily as those which were perfectly dry. The only difference is that, in striking, it is useful to do so a trifle more firmly so as to get through the thin film of wax surrounding the head. When once the flame starts, the match burns very readily, owing to the wax which has adhered to the wood. Any ordinary matches can be treated in the manner described.—S. Leonard Boston in St. Nicholas.

About Pictures. Nearly all houses have too many pictures. And yet, paradoxical as it may seem, the introduction of a new picture now and then is an excellent plan. What is needed is a drastic pruning in most homes, in which pictures that have no real merit are sent to the limbo of the attic, while new and worth while studies in color or black and white are hung on the walls to give a new interest and a new beauty.

SOUTH THOMASTON

At the monthly meeting of the Village Improvement Corporation, Thursday evening it was voted to commence a series of suppers and dances to be given every two weeks in the Grange hall, the first to be held Friday June 30. The proceeds of this and every other one, following, are to be expended on the road between the Keag Village and Seal Harbor, each intervening to be given for Village improvement.

For the benefit of those not present at the meeting it was thought advisable to state the condition of the finances so everyone can understand where the money has been used. At the last three dances at least, the society has been going behind to the tune of six dollars and more. The actual expense consisting of light bill and hall hire, every two weeks, dance music having been gratis. A little over $500 has been earned, about one-half having been used for above expenses and incidentals. The other remains in the treasury. It is hoped that the citizens of South Thomaston will again put their shoulders to the wheel and help to turn money enough to make a showing when it is used. The sidewalk as well as the road to Seal Harbor is in a deplorable condition and must be repaired, and as it takes big money to make small repairs, as everyone knows, big money must be raised in order to make any showing. So rally to the work everybody! Get busy if you want to see things moving! The music for dancing will be furnished by our efficient local orchestra and dancing will be from 8.30 to 12, with a reasonable admission. See ad.

A free home demonstration by a woman representative of the Farm Bureau will be given in the Grange hall all day Friday. The making of fireless cookers in forenoon and Betties in the afternoon is the program. Everyone is asked to attend. Bring a picnic dinner with you if you come to stay all day. Don't forget the Village Improvement supper and dance in the evening.

HOW

MUSIC CAN BE USED TO OVERCOME SHELL SHOCK.

The Society of Vocal Therapy was founded two years ago in England to provide teachers for the instruction of soldiers and ex-soldiers in breathing and singing under medical supervision.

At the second annual meeting of the society, Lieut. Col. Sir Frederick Mott gave an address on the influence of music on body and mind.

He said that early in the war two cases of shell shock in which there was complete loss of memory came under his notice, which showed that musical memory returned earlier than other forms of memory—or, rather, the power of recollecting past experiences. He found that soldiers suffering with shock who had been singers or players of the piano were able to remember and sing songs or play pieces they had learned on the piano, and yet could not remember experiences connected with their daily vocations or surroundings.

Again, men who were mute from the same cause would at a concert suddenly regain their speech by joining in the chorus of some well-known song. Of all the arts, music appealed most to the emotions, and probably words associated with music were most stably organized in the mind, owing to the musical origin of the language of the emotions.

He quoted the case of a soldier who suffered from aphasia following a gunshot wound of the left side of the brain. The bullet passed through the speech center and also blinded him. He understood what was said to him, but could express judgment only by "Ah" and "No," which corresponded to "Yes" and "No." He could, however, sing several songs through without difficulty, provided the first word or bar of the music was given to him. When the song "Tis a Long Way to Tipperary" was hummed to him, he started the well-known chorus, winding up with "Are we downhearted? No." But on being then asked to say "Tipperary," he replied: "Oot," and could not utter any of the words. A month later he could speak.

Powdered the Rose.

Once there was a little stenographer. Every morning before breakfast she would go out in her garden and walk among the flower beds. One day, when the roses were opening, she gave a little scream.

"Oh, the poor things!" she cried, and straightway ran back into the house.

When she appeared she was carrying a box of face powder and a puff, and soon, under her deft touch, the face powder lay thick upon the soft, glowing petals. Then she rubbed it in, expertly merging white with red.

"I want each little rose to be as pretty as I am," she explained.

Stories of Great ScoutsBy Elmo
Scott
WatsonROCKY MOUNTAIN TOM AND
THE "BLOODY ESPINOZAS"

Back in the sixties in the Colorado gold camps around Pike's Peak the warning "The Bloody Espinozas are coming!" struck more terror to the hearts of the miners than the dread cry of "Indians! Indians!"

The older, Juan Espinoza, believed that he had a special mission to kill all Americans. He ambushed them in the daytime and crept upon them at night. His record of murders is said to have totaled 32.

In 1863 he killed two well-known prospectors of California Gulch, near Leadville. Their comrades vowed vengeance on the Espinozas, and after a long chase and a hard battle, they killed the youngest brother, Juan, escaped and the next year he was back in his old haunts in the Sangre de Cristo mountains roving stage coaches and wagon trains and murdering settlers and miners. He took his nephew with him on these raids, and they grew so bold that a reward of $1,500 was offered for their capture, dead or alive.

At this time there was living at Fort Garland a little Irishman called Rocky Mountain Tom. Tom Tobin was his real name, and he was a close friend of Kit Carson. He was one of the best mountain trappers.

When the report of the Espinozas' latest murder was brought to the fort Tobin immediately volunteered to go after the bandits. Setting out alone, he took their trail and stuck with it, although it led into the wildest parts of the Sangre de Cristos. Late one evening he saw from a distance two men crouched under the shelter of a shelving rock and a little stream.

Stalking the two bandits as he would wild animals, the scout crept closer and closer. He knew they could not be taken alive, and he dared not take the chance of missing his first shot. The Mexicans were crouched over a tiny flame warming their hands, but in the dim light they offered a poor target even for so good a marksman as Rocky Mountain Tom.

At last Juan Espinoza rose. He stretched both arms wide, forming with his body a perfect cross and presenting a target which loomed up plainly against the background of a sky aglow with the sunset. Tobin fired instantly and the Mexican murderer fell dead across his camp fire. The nephew scrambled to his feet. The scout fired again, and the last of the Espinozas dropped dead.

A few days later Tobin walked into Fort Garland, carrying a sack, and demanded a reward of $1,500. The sack contained the heads of the Bloody Espinozas.

Powdered the Rose.

Once there was a little stenographer. Every morning before breakfast she would go out in her garden and walk among the flower beds. One day, when the roses were opening, she gave a little scream.

"Oh, the poor things!" she cried, and straightway ran back into the house.

When she appeared she was carrying a box of face powder and a puff, and soon, under her deft touch, the face powder lay thick upon the soft, glowing petals. Then she rubbed it in, expertly merging white with red.

"I want each little rose to be as pretty as I am," she explained.

Avon in the Dark.

Owing to the inadequate rates prescribed by the authorities, the electric company of Stratford-on-Avon has been allowed to turn down so far as the equipment is concerned and it is feared that the plant will go to pieces at any moment and leave the town of Shakespeare in darkness. As the town is a literary mecca, with tourists in great numbers there all the time, such an incident might prove to be very inconvenient.

SUMMER COTTAGES AND BOARD

In Social Circles

The arrival and departure of guests during the vacation season is of interest both to them and their friends. We are glad to print such items of social news and will thank our friends to supply us with information in this connection.

Miss Hattie Vose-Hall of Augusta has removed to her cottage at Penauquid Point for the summer.

Mrs. Fred Sturtevant, a Bath soprano, who was a weekend guest in the city, gave great pleasure to the large audience present at the Sunday evening service of the First Baptist church, by her artistic singing of Dudley Buck's "Fear Not Ye, O Israel."

Elmer Rich and family of Bath spent Sunday in this city and at Oakland Park as guests of Reuben E. Rich.

J. Donald Coughlin from St. John's College, Brooklyn; Miss Ethel Crie from Bates and Irving Tuttle from Bowdoin, were among last week's arrivals for the summer vacation.

Mrs. C. D. Williamson of Portland has been spending a few days with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Jenkins.

The Tuesday Club is meeting with Mrs. H. N. McDougall at her Megunticook Lake cottage.

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Herzog and sons Lewis and Rayne, and Mr. Herzog's mother, Mrs. H. Herzog, have arrived from New York and are occupying their summer home at North Haven. With them as guests came Ben Harvey of Chicago and Jack McKeon of New York, who are fellow students of Lewis and Rayne Herzog at Princeton College. Mr. Herzog came to North Haven in his new yacht Coney, which is probably the fastest craft in Penobscot Bay waters at this writing. The yacht left New London, Conn., at 3:15 last Friday afternoon and was this side of the coast before sunset.

Continuing her journey to Rockland with only one engine working she averaged 13 1/2 knots. The run from Portland to Rockland Sunday was made in five hours, with a heavy sea running and in almost a gale of wind. "I never had a more seaworthy craft," said Mr. Herzog to the Courier-Gazette reporter. The Coney was built by Lawley in 1916, and is said to be the famous designer's masterpiece. She measures 91 feet over all, is 11 feet on the beam and can do a 32-knot sprint. The motive power is furnished by two Sterling engines of 300 h. p. each. The yacht is finished in mahogany and Mr. Herzog may feel proud of his acquisition. The Coney was donated to the government by Major Levering during the World War, and was used by foreign attaches, ambassadors and other dignitaries. A tablet expresses the government's appreciation.

The Chapin Class will hold a picnic at Oakland Park Wednesday evening at 6.30, with Mrs. Ethel Campbell in charge. Members please take dishes.

Mrs. R. W. Bickford, who has been in Syracuse, N. Y., the past month while her daughter, Mrs. Rudolph Gilley, has been receiving treatment at the House of the Good Shepherd Hospital, for acute cystitis and pyelitis, arrived home Sunday, accompanied by Mrs. Gilley, who will spend the summer here recuperating. The hospital is connected with the Medical School of Syracuse University, and it was Mrs. Gilley's good fortune to have the services of an eminent specialist who is a member of the staff. She is now making gratifying progress toward recovery.

E. B. MacAllister has bought the I. M. Taylor cottage at Bay Point, and is taking possession this week.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Lamb have arrived in Rockland for a two months stay. Mr. Lamb is well known in many Rockland homes as the genial vendor of Mystol (Diamond brand) and is covering his Maine territory this season in an Oakland six.

Mr. and Mrs. L. F. Young and sons Thomas and Fred, and Miss Nickerson of Waterville made a weekend visit with Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Cooper, Lime-rock street.

Mr. and Mrs. Horbert L. Hussey, son John and daughter Ruth of Newton, Mass., are guests at Orel E. Davies' cottage, Lucia Beach. Miss Hussey is an expert fancy dancer.

Mr. and Mrs. M. A. McKusie are celebrating their tenth wedding anniversary by an auto trip, which includes Belgrade Lakes, Bethel and Shelburne. N. H. Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Charles accompany them.

Walter Richardson is spending his vacation with his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Hoyt Emery, Mountain Road.

Mrs. Ralph M. Choate and daughter returned last night from a visit in Bangor and Ellsworth.

The Woman's Association of the First Baptist church meets at 3 o'clock Wednesday in the church parlors.

Mrs. W. P. Hurley, who has been spending the past three weeks at home, returns to Togus today.

Some of the late summer dresses are particularly interesting in material and styling. It is pretty safe to say that voiles, dark dotted Swisses and tulle have the call. And of voiles the figured variety seems to be the most liked, though in solid colors of fine French voile the season finds some of its most effective frocks. The dotted voile which looks exactly like dotted Swiss, and costs a whole lot less, has won a firm place for itself. Although the dots are not embroidered but are stamped by some process, they will not come off, and do not yield to wear or rubbing. Some of the best selling dresses show white dots of this sort upon grounds of black, navy blue and

COLLINS-WOOSTER

A very pretty home wedding took place at Ingraham Hill, on Saturday evening at 8.30 at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wooster, when their daughter Katherine Emery, became the wife of Charles Lake Collins. The ceremony took place in the presence of about 75 relatives and friends of the bride and groom. The couple stood under an arch of evergreens and flowers. The marriage service was performed by Rev. Benjamin P. Browne of the First Baptist Church of Rockland, of which the couple are regular attendants. The bride was becomingly gowned in white and carried white roses. The couple were attended by Mrs. Jessie Ames, sister of the bride, and James A. Collins, brother of the groom, as best man.

Mr. Collins is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John K. Collins of 155 Pleasant street, Rockland, and served in the World War with the 42d Infantry, Machine Gun Battalion. He is now sergeant in the 365th Co. Legion Team Smells Blood At Last—Do Champions Come Back? Ask Bill Flint.

THIS WEEK'S GAMES

Tonight—Rockport vs. Knox Electric.
Wednesday night—Snows vs. Texacos.
Thursday night—American Legion vs. Knox Electric.
Friday night—Postponed game, undecided.

The Lime Company's spurt was halted last night, when that team was defeated by the lowly Legionaires. The standing:

Electric	3	1	.750
Rockport	2	1	.666

Legion	1	4	.200

Legion 4, Lime 1

Hostilities were resumed in the Twilight League last night, and by virtue of an extra inning, in which she scored three runs, the American Legion won her first game of the season. Up to that inning it had been a very pretty pitchers' battle between "Soap" Rogers and Bill Flint—the latter being resurrected against his will, and doing a powerful good turn. The fans were also glad to see "Dumpy" Dahlgren, the Bowdoin football star, back in his old position behind the bat. With his advent the fortunes of the Legion team may be expected to improve.

Fogarty started the extra inning by grounding out, Rogers to Rogers. Flint injected a single, went second on Daunais' wild heave, and third on a wild pitch. Dahlgren had meantime been passed and stole second. Averill fanned. With two down and two on Sullivan popped up a high fly. Beaton and Bartlett both started for it, and both were evidently confused by the crowd's shouts, for the ball fell between them, and two Legion men crossed the pan. Sullivan also scored when Beaton fumbled Thornton's grounder.

Freeman's one-hand catch of Mealey's smashing liner was one of the many snappy plays which distinguished the game. The score:

THE PRATTLER

LXXX.

James G. Grady, New York vaudeville artist, who is a guest of Adam Cole at the latter's Crescent Beach bungalow, put on a brand new act the other morning after the food and it won a big hand from its first audience. It is rather a superfluous remark, but considerable water fell over Crescent Beach as well as everywhere else in this locality. In fact the morning after the night before divulged the fact that many of the cottages had become miniature islands and consequently many of the occupants were segregated from one another, unless they happened to want wet feet. To go back to the first act—Mr. Grady, after getting from the window a shimmering glimpse of neighboring lawns, got out a canoe and paddled from one cottage to another. It must have been rather a unique sensation to sit at one's breakfast table and suddenly see a canoe gliding over one's front lawn. The act received a generous round of applause—particularly when a truant front step to a cottage was captured and towed back to where it belonged. Curious.

"The gas is out," said Mrs. G. W. Hemingway to her husband Monday night after the storm had been tolerably on its way for several hours. "won't you see if the meter needs a quarter?"

"It is very possible it needs a quarter," replied Billy from the bottom of the cellar stairs a few minutes later. "but just how a fellow is going to get to the meter is what is bothering me."

The Hemingways live on Union street in one of the tenements opposite the Public Library and on Monday night the brook to the rear was an extremely bad actor. Several feet of water was in the bottom of the cellar when the gas suddenly began to decrease and it consistently kept on decreasing while Billy was trying to figure out some way to get over to the meter dry shod. It occurred to him how convenient it would be if he had a swinging rope as in a gymnasium. Then he could grasp the ring in one hand, swing safely across the brook, and get to the meter. But he hadn't thought of this. Finally he spied a loose door on this he leaped, Robinson Crusoe fashion. With a piece of board for a paddle, he maneuvered across the cellar to the meter, put in a quarter—and there was light. He did not say, but the charges are he mended his raft to the top stair, for there might have been further occasion to go down cellar.

It once rained steadily for forty days and forty nights, we are told. We have no way of making an accurate estimate, but we think just about a week of rain such as came down Monday night would total up to approximately the same amount of water as was above everything at the time of the big flood. And had it rained forty days and forty nights as vigorously as it did last Monday, then according to our figures, that dove would be returning to the ark with the olive leaf just about now, for the water surely could not have gone down sooner. And it wouldn't have been Noah, Shem, Ham, Japheth and the rest on the ark, but their great-great-great-grandchildren who would get out on Monday Avenue. But there wouldn't have been room aboard the ark for all the increasing generations. Perhaps after the appearance of a new one, they would ask the next generation but one to leap overboard and thus make way for youth. Enough of this idle prattle.

People who live along the banks of large rivers must have a monotonous time during a storm such as we had upon this vicinity. We should think it would be a splendid, forehanded thing to do if such families would build or have built a sort of family ark which could be erected anywhere in the back yard. A rope tied from it to the house would prevent it from floating off and a ladder from the second story to the top deck would be a comfort to a family when the rain did come down and the river did rise. We would have felt much more secure had we known there was such a craft in our back yard the other night. Really though, for river towns, we should think an ark would be almost indispensable at certain times of the year. Perhaps that might make a lucrative proposition, for some energetic young man—talking up arks for river towns and getting contracts for same. They could be made to resemble summer houses and of course would be painted the same color as the house to which they belonged. Window boxes and vines could make of them quite attractive craft. And think of the feelings of smug security. Why, it would be a pleasure to go to bed on a stormy night with the river creeping up the lawn. And they could be talked up easily.

"Now let me have just a minute of your time, Mr. Scandso. Time is money, but I don't want any of your money until I have convinced you that my time is as valuable as yours and that I have a proposition here that you or your family can not afford to disregard. Have you an ark without your home? No? That is the very latest wrinkle along the river. Everybody is building them and you would be astonished to know how they enhance the beauty and value of your property. Now right over there between those elm trees would make an ideal location, Mr. Scandso, and the appearance of the thing is of course nothing compared to the comfort and security which one derives. Arks should of course be essentially practical and constructed along thoroughly sea-going lines. Now that box of geraniums of your wife is too low to lend the proper artistic effect. Raised to the forward deck of an ark such as I could build you would find just the touch of artistry that this place lacks."

Peaking of floods, Petunia must have had a flood of emotions when she first heard her name being paged by radio. A member of our family said this morning at breakfast that it was only fair to get Petunia down from that sea-plane. The family member went on to say that we owed this to the deluded readers who had been following the Goose-neck serial. Merciful heavens! haven't we been trying to get her down? We do not want to see any harm come to the girl, but just as such as we are about to get her down, along comes something else to claim our attention.
